

Ontario Families: Born Network

Dear Ontario families

There is a new registry in Ontario called BORN network. It collects personal health data for the government surrounding births and newborn outcomes. While the intention behind BORN is good as well as the programs which have worked hard to develop it, the government has decided that this collection of personal health information may be done without a consent form signed by you. Currently there is no “opt out” or decline form available which may be wanted by some families.

Please take time to learn about the program here: www.bornontario.ca

And learn about what info they are collecting:

And info about their privacy policies:
